Message of the Week Mark 14:1—15:47
"They began to be distressed and to say to him, one by one, Surely it is not I?"

During this dramatic scene at the Last Supper, we can picture Judas Iscariot, the betrayer, trying to play up his innocence as long as possible. He knew he had already betrayed Jesus, and if he joined in the "who, me?" ritual, he was just putting on appearances. But what about the others? The rest of the Twelve were deeply disturbed by the idea that they might betray Jesus. As we know, however, when push came to shove, Peter's fear of betraying Jesus was trumped by fear for his own life. But notice Peter's reaction when he realized what he'd done: "He broke down and wept." How different was humble Peter's response from that of prideful Judas. The betrayers in today's Gospel readings are not just these two men, however. We also follow the crowd who hailed Jesus one day with "hosannas!" and a week later nailed him with their angry "crucify him!" How quickly our faith can turn fickle. But today, let us resolve not to be so proud as to think we are perfect disciples. Let us have the humility of Peter who wept over his imperfections and, ultimately, repented of his sins. Only when we acknowledge that we need God's help will we be able to hail him and praise him as he truly deserves.

Questions of the Week?

Mark 14:1—15:47:

What do you do to hear the Passion narrative anew each year?

Isaiah 50:4-7:

How do you make peace with the suffering you experience in life?

Philippians 2:6-11:

What do you think Paul meant by the phrase that Jesus "did not regard equality with God something to be grasped"?

JUSTICE NOTES:

Rather, he emptied himself, taking the form of a slave
Philippians 2: 7

This week, our faith asks us to look ultimate sacrifice right in the eye. We, humans, who are so averse to pain, must ponder the depth of love Jesus has for us. In an act of self-emptying, Jesus pours out his very self for us in love. As we recall the Passion story, we are called as witnesses to respond and to imitate his life. And as God's family, we are called to look out for one another. It's not just about "me." It's about "us." Ours is a journey of self-emptying in love too.

The Vatican Council II document, Gaudium et Spes ("Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World") expresses this intense giving so eloquently in its opening paragraphs that I hope you reflect on its words in this most holiest of weeks.

"1. The joys and the hopes, the grief and the anguish of the people of our time, especially of those who are poor or afflicted, are the joys and hopes, the grief and anguish of the followers of Christ as well. Nothing that is genuinely human fails to find an echo in their hearts. For theirs is a community of people united in Christ and guided by the Holy Spirit in their pilgrimage towards the Father's kingdom, bearers of a message of salvation for all of humanity. That is why they cherish a feeling of deep solidarity with the human race and its history.

2. Now that the Second Vatican Council has studied the mystery of the Church more deeply, it addresses not only the daughters and sons of the Church and all who call upon the name of Christ, but the whole of humanity as well, and the council wishes to explain to everyone how it conceives of the presence and activity of the Church in the world of today. The world which the council has in mind is the world of women and men, the entire human family seen in its total environment. It is the world as the theater of human history, bearing the marks of its travail, its triumphs and failures. It is the world which Christians believe has been created and is sustained by the love of its Maker, has fallen into the slavery of sin but has been freed by Christ, who was crucified and rose again in order to break the strangle hold of the evil one, so that the world might be fashioned anew according to God's design and reach its fulfillment."

Ask yourself how these words portray love as the meaning of Holy Week. How are we called to

PRO-LIFE ISSUE:

Pope Francis came out squarely against the death penalty once again, calling it "unacceptable" regardless of the seriousness of the crime of the condemned.

Pope Francis met with a three-person delegation of the International Commission Against the Death Penalty March 20, and issued a letter on the occasion urging worldwide abolition.

Citing his previous messages against the death penalty, the pope called capital punishment "cruel, inhumane and degrading" and said it "does not bring justice to the victims, but only foments revenge."

Furthermore, in a modern "state of law, the death penalty represents a failure" because it obliges the state to kill in the name of justice, the pope said. Rather, it is a method frequently used by "totalitarian regimes and fanatical groups" to do away with "political dissidents, minorities" and any other person deemed a threat to their power and to their goals.

"Human justice is imperfect," he said, and the death penalty loses all legitimacy within penal systems where judicial error is possible.

Increasingly, public opinion is against the death penalty, in view of the effective means available today to restrain a criminal without denying them the possibility to redeem themselves and of a "greater moral sensitivity regarding the value of human life," Pope Francis said.

The death penalty is an affront to the sanctity of life and to the dignity of the human person, he said. It contradicts God's plan for humankind and society and God's merciful justice, he added.

Capital punishment "is cruel, inhuman and degrading, as is the anxiety that precedes the moment of execution and the terrible wait between the sentence and the application of the punishment, a 'torture' which, in the name of a just process, usually lasts many years and, in awaiting death, leads to sickness and insanity."

The pope went on to say that the application of capital punishment denies the condemned the possibility of making reparation for the wrong committed, of expressing their interior conversion through confession, and expressing contrition, so as to encounter God's merciful and saving love.

Speaking about life imprisonment, Pope Francis said such sentences makes it impossible for a prisoner to "project a future" and in that way can be considered a "disguised death" as it deprives prisoners not only of their freedom but also of their hope.

Message of the Pennsylvania Catholic Conference:

The Pennsylvania Catholic Conference welcomes Governor Tom Wolf's announcement of a "reprieve to inmate Terrance Williams, who was scheduled to be executed on March 4, 2015. Governor Wolf will grant a reprieve – not a commutation – in each future instance in which an execution for a death row inmate is scheduled, establishing an effective moratorium on the death penalty in Pennsylvania."

The Catholic Bishops of Pennsylvania have long been advocating for an end to the death penalty in Pennsylvania because the modern penal system provides alternatives to taking the lives of the guilty. Punishment should reflect our belief in the inherent human dignity of each person, and taking a life to avenge the death of another does not create a culture of life.

People convicted of capital offenses must be punished effectively and appropriately for their crimes. Family and friends of victims, and society as a whole, demand this. Just punishment, however, can be attained without resorting to execution. Even the most violent offenders who commit heinous crimes still have a dignity given by God.

In Living the Gospel of Life, the U.S. Bishops wrote, "Our witness to respect for life shines most brightly when we demand respect for each and every human life, including the lives of those who fail to show that respect for others. The antidote to violence is love, not more violence."

In unity with Pope Francis and the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, the PCC reaffirms absolute respect and protection for every human life, from conception to natural death, even when one of those lives has been responsible for a heinous crime.

Society will not benefit from imposing the death penalty, nor will it be harmed by showing mercy. By turning away from the death penalty, we are embracing hope, not despair. Today's announcement breaks the cycle of violence that so plagues our society. We hope that this spirit of respect for human life is shown throughout all laws and policies of the Commonwealth.

Ways to Evangelize During Lent

Observing Good Friday vs. Opening Day

So, why can't you go to the baseball opener on Friday?

In some years, Good Friday occurs on the same day major league baseball teams have their "opening day" celebrations with games usually starting at 3:05pm. While everyone else is heading to the stands, eager for hot dogs and home runs, all those Catholics are walking quietly towards churches. Why?? Because at three o'clock on a Friday, on a hillside called Calvary, the Savior of the world took his last breath. All for love of us. "It was now about noon and darkness came over the whole land until three in the afternoon because of an eclipse of the sun. Then the veil of the temple was torn down the middle. Jesus cried out in a loud voice, "Father, into your hands I commend my spirit"; and when he had said this he breathed his last." (Luke 23:44-46) At 3pm on Good Friday, we take the time to reflect on what Christ has done for us, not only by fasting, but also by the various devotions that our churches offer: veneration of the cross, the reading of the Passion and the Stations of the Cross. On Good Friday, we spend our afternoon walking with Christ to Calvary, immersed in his love and mercy...and that beats any baseball game, any time.

20th Anniversary Talent Show

St Maria Goretti will be held on Sunday, April 19th at 7pm. Free admission and free refreshments.

Living Stations will be held at St. Cecilia's Church on March 29th at 3pm. We invite everyone to attend and experience this beautiful re-enactment of our Lord's Passion and Death.

Suffering

Jesus did not come to do away with suffering or remove it. He came to fill it with his presence.
